Costa Rica 4, Nicaragua 0

2019 Concacaf Gold Cup

Costa Rica made easy work of their 2019 Gold Cup opener on Sunday, sweeping aside Nicaragua 4-0 to delight the home crowd at Estadio Nacional in San Jose on the occasion of the tournament's first-ever matches to be played outside the United States, Mexico or Canada.

Heavily favored, Los Ticos made sure it was a festive evening via a strong start, with a 7th-minute opener from Bryan Oviedo and two more goals via Celso Borges and Elias Aguilar providing a 3-0 halftime advantage.

Handed a start at the heart of the hosts' midfield, FC Cincinnati's Allan Cruz capped the comfortable victory with the fourth goal of the night, rifling a firm finish off the underside of the crossbar in the 75th minute.

His FCC teammate Kendall Weston also went the full 90 in Costa Rica's defense, while former Real Salt Lake star Alvaro Saborio made a substitute appearance at the distinguished age of 37.

Goals

7' – CRC – Bryan Oviedo
19' – CRC – Celso Borges
45+1' – CRC – Elias Aguilar
75' – CRC – Allan Cruz

Three Things

THE BIG PICTURE: This was not a night for underdogs. Los Pinoleros, while hard-working, showed why this is just their third Gold Cup appearance in program history. Costa Rica weren't severely tested but showed organization, cleverness and razor-sharp counterattacking nous that could take them far in this tournament.

MOMENT OF THE MATCH: Ticos veteran Celso Borges pushed the score to 2-0 and set the tone for the evening with this long-range missile, made possible by some solid hold-up play from Jonathan McDonald:

MAN OF THE MATCH: With a lovely goal, an assist on the night's opener and industrious midfield work throughout, Allan Cruz is a worthy choice.

Next Up

CRC: Thursday, June 20 vs. Bermuda (9:30 pm ET | FS1, UniMás, UDN; TSN GO in Canada) | Gold Cup

NCA: Thursday, June 20 vs. Haiti (7 pm ET | FS1, UniMás, UDN; TSN GO in Canada) | Gold Cup

ATL UTD 2 falls 5-0 to Pittsburgh Riverhounds SC

Atlanta United 2 lost 5-0 to Pittsburgh Riverhounds SC Saturday night at Fifth Third Bank Stadium.

Pittsburgh opened the scoring in the 4th minute from a corner kick that was headed out of the box by Kevin Barajas. The clearance fell right to Robbie Mertz at the top of the box where the midfielder struck a low shot that took an unfavorable deflection and bounced over a diving Dylan Castanheira, who was positioned well for the low shot.

Riverhounds SC doubled its lead in the 7th minute after Steevan Dos Santos scored off a rebound from a Neco Brett shot which was initially saved by Castanheira. Pittsburgh added its third in the 13th minute when Brett finished with a shot to the bottom left corner.

Pittsburgh added two more goals in the second half. Thomas Vancaeyezeele scored off a corner in the 70th minute while Atlanta conceded an own goal in the 76th.

ATL UTD 2 (3-7-4, 13 points) returns to action Saturday, June 22 against Indy Eleven at 7:00 p.m. EST at Lucas Oil Stadium. The match will be streamed live on ESPN+.

LA Galaxy's Uriel Antuna opens Mexico account at Gold Cup

Uriel Antuna was the 23rd man on Mexico's roster for the 2019 Concacaf Gold Cup, but the LA Galaxy man made sure everyone knew his name right away.

The winger, a late addition to the El Tri roster due to an injury to another call-up, started Mexico's Group A opener against Cuba on Saturday at the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, Calif. And he opened his goals account at senior level just two minutes in, cleaning up a rebound off the post.

He added his second goal just before halftime to make it 4-0 for Mexico.

After setting up Alexis Vega's first career Mexico goal, Antuna then completed the hat trick in the 80th minute, to bring the score to 7-0, the final margin of victory.

The 21-year-old is on loan this season at the Galaxy from Manchester City. Starting each of LA's MLS regular season games so far this season, he has two goals and two assists in 16 games to date in his MLS career.

Haiti 2, Bermuda 1

2019 Concacaf Gold Cup

Bermuda made a strong first impression in their Gold Cup debut, but they had no answer for Frantzdy Pierrot.

The striker led Haiti to a 2-1 comeback win over Bermuda at Estadio Nacional in San Jose, Costa Rica, the first half of a Group B doubleheader and the first-ever Gold Cup match played outside the United States, Mexico or Canada.

Bermuda, one of the smallest nations in Concacaf with a domestic population of just over 71,000, entertained with their skill and possession in the first 45 minutes and took a deserved lead into halftime via Dante Leverock's corner-kick header.

The Gombey Warriors' defending let them down after the break, however, and it cost them dearly.

First Pierrot, who plays his club soccer for Belgium's Royal Excel Mouscron, headed home a well-worked set-piece delivery at the far post to equalize, and 12 minutes later he stroked in the rebound after Bermuda goalkeeper Dale Eve parried a Duckens Nazon shot into his path.

New York Red Bulls Homegrown Derrick Etienne gave Haiti a spark off the bench and was prominently involved in the buildup to the game-winner, while New England Revolution midfielder Zach Herivaux worked the full 90 minutes at the base of Haiti's midfield.

Goals

45+2' – BER – Dante Leverock

54' – HAI – Frantzdy Pierrot

66' – HAI – Frantzdy Pierrot

Three Things

THE BIG PICTURE: It's encouraging to watch Cinderellas like Bermuda seize the opportunities provided by this tournament's expansion, though their naivete showed as they allowed Haiti to slip past them and grab the advantage in the race for second place in Group B behind expected winners Costa Rica.

MOMENT OF THE MATCH: Etienne's direct run down Haiti's left flank disorganized the Bermuda defense and set the stage for Pierrot's winner:

MAN OF THE MATCH: Though Etienne was the eye-catching supersub who changed the game, Pierrot gets the nod for his composure in front of goal.

David Beckham wants unsettled Serie A superstar in the MLS next season

Manchester United legend David Beckham has been on the lookout for a new striker for his MLS Miami franchise and according to the latest reports, he has shortlisted Serie A giants Inter Milan's Mauro Icardi for the role.

The Argentine international is reportedly going through a tough time at his current club due to a host of reasons. It was in February that Icardi's wife and agent Wanda Nara made derogatory comments targeting Inter Milan's management and that did not sit well with the club. It led to the star being dropped from the first team for nearly three months before the problem was resolved with Wanda apologising.

Icardi also had a fallout with former manager Luciano Spalletti, who then benched him for a few other games in the 2018-19 season.

Overall, the 26-year-old played only 37 games for the club last season, scoring 17 goals in total across various competitions. Inter Milan finished fourth in the Serie A after they got knocked out of the UEFA Champions League in the group stages itself. They then played in the Europa League, where they were eliminated by Eintracht Frankfurt in the round-of-16.

It is an Argentine news agency Telam.ar that reported that Beckham – who is also a former Real Madrid, AC Milan, Paris Saint Germain and LA Galaxy player – contacted Icardi to invite him to be a part of his Major League Soccer (MLS) team Inter Miami next season.

The publication further reports that Beckham wants to form a stellar team for the 2020 season and that he also has a few other famous names like Barcelona striker Luis Suarez, Real Madrid midfielder and Manchester United right-back Antonio Valencia on his transfer wishlist.

Minnesota United: Gold Cup break perfect timing

MLS takes a hiatus for the next two weeks with the group stages of the CONCACAF Gold Cup taking place. This could be perfect timing for Minnesota United.

With the U.S. Open Cup fixtures out of the way, MLS takes a hiatus for the next two weeks with the group stages of the CONCACAF Gold Cup taking place. This might just be the perfect timing for Minnesota United.

Even with a resounding victory over Sporting Kansas City in the U.S. Open Cup this week, the Loons' form is sure to be worrying manager Adrian Heath.

The three league games before the USOC fixture saw Minnesota United score just twice, conceding seven, and picking up zero points as they look to reach the postseason for the first time in their history.

Their next MLS match is on Saturday, June 29 against new boys, FC Cincinnati, who currently sit bottom in the Eastern Conference and have lost eight of their last nine matches in the league. With two weeks before that game, Heath will be looking for improvements from his side.

This squad still needs time to gel with eight new faces coming into the team after the last game of 2018, but there are still problems within that need addressing, particularly at the back. With Francisco Calvo traded away to Chicago fire midway through the opening stanza of the campaign, the Loons look to be wearing thin at centre half.

Michael Boxall and Brent Kallman have been there since MNUFC's debut in the league. Ike Opara came to the club in the offseason. But after those three, only Wyatt Omsberg, a 2018 SuperDraft selection, fits into the middle of defence. That is not the most inspiring depth at one of the most important positions in the team.

Could going back to three at the back be the right idea? Opara, Kallman, Boxall and Omsberg can fight it out for the three spots in the middle of the defence, while using wing-backs instead of orthodox full-backs could help a transition for either Hassani Dotson or Miguel Ibarra on the left side. In this formation, the possible strength of the squad could be:

GK – Mannone, Shuttleworth, St. Clair
 CB – Boxall, Kallman, Omsberg, Opara
 RWB – Finlay, Gasper, Manlay, Metanire
 LWB – Dotson, M.Ibarra, Miller
 CM – Alonso, Gregus, R.Ibarra, Martin, Molino, Olum, Schuller
 AM/ST – Danladi, Quintero, Rodriguez, Toye

Could a 3-5-2 or 3-4-3 work for the Loons? It is a system that Heath has put into practice before, but it has not been perfect. Get the balance of the XI right, and the results should come, but that balance is all-important.

Happy birthday, Crew: Celebrating 25 years of Black & Gold excellence

On June 15, 1994, Columbus, Ohio was introduced to its first professional soccer team, the Columbus Crew.

The Crew was named as the first of 10 founding teams that made up Major League Soccer. Lamar Hunt and his son Clark became the owners of the club, along with the Kansas City Wizards in 1996 when the league formed.

Introducing their first players such as Doctor Khumalo and Brian McBride, the Crew eventually got things underway under the direction of the team's first head coach, Timo Liekoski on April 13, 1996, defeating D.C. United 4-0 at Ohio Stadium. After spending two seasons at the Horseshoe, the Black & Gold began the 1999 season at their new soccer-specific stadium. Crew Stadium was the first professional soccer-specific stadium in the United States.

In the inaugural game at Crew Stadium, the Black & Gold defeated the New England Revolution in front of a sellout crowd of 24,741.

That 1999 season saw Columbus finish with a 19-13 record, worthy of second place in the Eastern Conference. However, the team eventually lost to United in the Eastern Conference Finals for the third straight year.

Following the season, superstar Stern John left the club after scoring 52 goals in just 65 games for the Crew. The 2000 campaign saw Columbus acquire forward Dante Washington from the Dallas Burn to replace John.

The club won its first major trophy in 2002, capturing the Lamar Hunt U.S. Open Cup. On the path to glory, the Black & Gold defeated the Richmond Kickers, the New York/New Jersey Metrostars and the Wizards before beating the LA Galaxy, who had just been crowned MLS Cup Champions, at home.

Club legend Brian McBride played his last season with Columbus in 2003 before moving to Fulham FC of the English Premier League.

The Black & Gold earned their second piece of hardware in 2004, winning the Supporters' Shield for having the best record in the league, setting a then-franchise record for points with 49 after an 18-game unbeaten streak to end the season. Despite the successful year, Columbus was eliminated from the playoffs in the Eastern Conference semifinals.

Columbus hired veteran MLS coach Sigi Schmid after a struggling 2005 season. In 2006 after going winless in 13 games, owner and founder Lamar Hunt tragically passed away.

The fortunes of the Crew Columbus changed in 2007 when the team acquired Argentine international Guillermo Barros Schelotto and forward Alejandro Moreno. The team missed the 2007 postseason but these two, along with others, would be the cornerstone of what was to come the following year.

In 2008, the Black & Gold realized a long-awaited dream by bringing home the MLS Cup. Not only that, Columbus won their second Supporters' Shield in franchise history.

Following the season, Sigi Schmid left the club to become the coach of expansion side, Seattle Sounders, which led the way for former player and assistant coach Robert Warzycha to become the team's new head coach.

Although the Crew won the Supporter's Shield in 2009, the quest to defend their MLS Cup Champion title was cut short after losing to Real Salt Lake in the Eastern Conference semifinals.

A slide downhill began in 2010 under Warzycha. After finishing the season 14-8-8, Columbus lost to the Colorado Rapids in the postseason's first round. The Black & Gold made it to the U.S. Open Cup final but lost to Sounders, 2-1 on the road.

The club struggled, losing in the wild card round against the Rapids yet again in 2011, and then just missed the playoffs in 2012. After a 1-0 loss to a 10-man Sounders side for more than half of the match, Columbus and Warzycha parted ways in September of 2013.

Fast forward, and Columbus welcomed Gregg Berhalter and Anthony Precourt in 2013. In his first year as both head coach and sporting director, Berhalter managed to get Columbus back into the playoffs, but lost by a landslide to the Revolution in the Eastern Conference semifinals. It was the start of something new, and many Columbus Crew fans noticed it.

In 2014, the club underwent a rebrand. Out with the old and in with the new, the Columbus Crew rebranded their name and logo to become Columbus Crew SC. New Crew it sure was.

The club made its return back to the MLS Cup Final in 2015, hosting at what is now called MAPFRE Stadium (formerly Crew Stadium) against the Portland Timbers. Unfortunately, Columbus saw their Western Conference foes lift the MLS Cup on their home soil, losing 2-1.

For the first time under Berhalter, the Crew missed the 2016 MLS Cup playoffs.

October 17, 2017, struck havoc in Columbus when Sports Illustrated reporter Grant Wahl broke news on Twitter that Precourt was exploring the option of moving the Black & Gold to Austin Texas.

This caused much uproar, tears and determination that the famous chant from the Nordecke "We Shall Not Be Moved," rang true. Thus was born the Save The Crew movement.

After countless meetings, press releases, business trips and an eventual lawsuit in March of 2018, it was officially announced that Cleveland Browns owner Jimmy Haslam and longtime team doctor Pete Edwards were in negotiations to buy the club. Almost a year later, the Crew was handed off to the Haslam and Edwards families, which took effect on January 1, 2019.

As part of the new era, Columbus brought in former Toronto FC president Tim Bezbatchenko and former University of Akron and Timbers head coach Caleb Porter to run the team.

So here we are, 25 years later, and Columbus Crew SC is still an existing and thriving MLS franchise.

Thank you for 25 years of excellence. Here's to many more! Happy birthday, Columbus Crew SC.
