Vlatko Andonovski appointed new US women's national team head coach

U.S. Soccer president Carlos Cordeiro today named Vlatko Andonovski as the ninth head coach in U.S. Women's National Team history.

Andonovski will be officially introduced at a press event today in New York City at 4 p.m. ET. The event will be broadcast live on U.S. Soccer's Facebook page, the USWNT Twitter page and on ussoccer.com.

Andonovski (Ann-DON-ahv-skee), 43, comes to U.S. Soccer after serving as a head coach during all seven seasons of the National Women's Soccer League, a stint which included two championships with FC Kansas City (2014 and 2015). He spent five seasons with FC Kansas City (2013-2017) and the last two with Reign FC (2018-2019). He was twice named NWSL Coach of the Year, in 2013 and again after the just completed 2019 season.

"We are thrilled to welcome Vlatko to the U.S. Soccer family," said Cordeiro. "As one of the most accomplished coaches in the NWSL history, he's proven he can help world-class players reach their peak, inspire his teams and win championships. He is widely respected by players and leaders across our soccer community, and he has the work ethic and winning mentality to guide the greatest women's soccer program in history into their next era of success."

"From the moment I came aboard, the main focus has been on hiring a new U.S. Women's National Team coach," said U.S. Women's National Team general manager Markgraf, who led the coaching search. "We identified the qualities we thought were most important for this unique position, we talked to quite a few people in the women's soccer community domestically and around the world, and in the end, Vlatko was the best fit with his experience with elite players, how he sees the game, how he coaches the game and manages players, and his overall personality and ability to take on a job of this magnitude. I know all the players and staff are excited to begin this new chapter in Women's National Team history with him and start the important work towards qualifying for the Olympics."

Andonovski will begin the job immediately as he chooses a roster and preps for the USA's final two games of 2019, against Sweden on Nov. 7 in Columbus, Ohio and Costa Rica on Nov. 10 in Jacksonville, Fla. His first major competition will come during the Concacaf Women's Olympic Qualifying Tournament set to take place at the end of January and beginning of February next year.

"First, I want to sincerely thank U.S. Soccer President Carlos Cordeiro, our Women's National Team General Manager Kate Markgraf and U.S. Soccer Sporting Director Earnie Stewart for this opportunity," said Andonovski. "It's a huge honor and I'm very excited to get started with this group of players and staff as we work towards continued success for this program. All of the talented coaches and players that have come before have built a legendary tradition of excellence and I'm committed to working very hard to continue to move this program forward."

A native of North Macedonia, which gained independence from Yugoslavia in 1991, Andonovski is a former professional player who played six seasons for clubs in the Macedonian Football League. He came to the United States in 2000 when he signed with the Wichita Wings of the National Professional Soccer League and later played with the Kansas City Comets, California Cougars and Philadelphia Kixx of the Major Indoor Soccer League. He was a two-time MISL All-Star.

United States 1, Senegal 4

Sporting Kansas City's Gianluca Busio got the United States off to a dream start with a 3rd-minute opener, but it all unraveled late as the Americans fell 4-1 to Senegal in their FIFA U-17 World Cup opener on Sunday in Vitoria, Brazil.

Souleymane Faye leveled the affair in first-half stoppage time before Senegal struck for three goals inside the final 20 minutes. After coming on in a 59th-minute double substitution, Aliou Balde and Amit Faye scored in the 72nd and 76th minutes, respectively. Pape Sarr's 88th-minute insurance tally ended any chance of a late US comeback.

Busio's header, set up by a cross from New York City FC's Joe Scally, was tied for the Americans' quickest goal in the competition in their history.

The US lineup included five players on first-team MLS contracts (Busio, Scally, Dallas' Ricardo Pepi, D.C.'s Griffin Yow, Seattle's Danny Leyva) and three more in MLS academies. Goalkeeper Damian Las also played in Chicago's youth setup before a move to Fulham's academy in England.

The US returns to Group D play on Wednesday when they face Japan, which opened their tournament later Sunday against the Netherlands.

North Carolina Courage 4, Chicago Red Stars 0

While the Audi 2019 MLS Cup Playoffs took a short break over the weekend, the North Carolina Courage stormed to another NWSL Championship on Sunday at WakeMed Soccer Park in Cary, N.C. in a 4-0 victory over the Chicago Red Stars. In the process, they made their case to be considered the league's first true dynasty.

Debinha opened the scoring after four minutes, and Jessica McDonald and Crystal Dunn added goals before halftime for the Courage, who have now won back-to-back NWSL Championships and three consecutive NWSL Shield's as the team with the league's best regular season record.

Samantha Mewis added insurance after halftime for the Courage, whose five major titles are the most in the league's seven-year history. Entering the season, North Carolina and the Portland Thorns held three each.

North Carolina veteran and longtime US women's national team contributor Heather O'Reilly was removed to a fitting ovation from the home crowd in the 89th minute, in her final professional game.

Changing of the guard? For first time ever, no founding MLS clubs in Conference Finals

It took 24 years, but the old guard of Major League Soccer are excluded from the Conference Finals stage of the Audi MLS Cup Playoffs for the first time ever.

That's a striking observation made by SoccerAmerica's Paul Kennedy, who's covered the league since its inception and took note of the fact that this year's final four is made up entirely of expansion teams:

Off The Post: LAFC victory in El Trafico is indeed watershed moment for MLS

The Galaxy's defeat means that for the first time in MLS's 24 years, none of the four teams in the conference finals is a founding member.

Kennedy calls this "a watershed moment" for the league; read his full rundown here.

MLS launched in 1996 with 10 member teams: The Colorado Rapids, Columbus Crew, D.C. United, Dallas Burn (now FC Dallas), Kansas City Wiz (now Sporting KC), LA Galaxy, New England Revolution, NY/NJ MetroStars (now New York Red Bulls), San Jose Clash (now Earthquakes) and Tampa Bay Mutiny (shuttered in 2001). Their inaugural kits and colors can be seen in the photo at top.

Five of those originals qualified for this year's postseason: D.C., Dallas, New England, the Galaxy and RBNY. The Galaxy made the deepest run of that quintet, advancing to the Western Conference Semifinals before falling 5-3 to their crosstown rivals LAFC. Atlanta United 2, Philadelphia Union 0

Julian Gressel scored early and Josef Martinez struck late as Atlanta United defeated the Philadelphia Union, 2-0, in the Audi 2019 MLS Cup Playoffs Eastern Conference Semifinals Thursday night at Mercedes-Benz Stadium.

That sets up a scintillating showdown of the last two MLS Cup champions as the Five Stripes host Toronto FC in the Eastern Conference Final on Oct. 30 (8 pm ET | FS1, TSN, TVAS, FOX Deportes) at Mercedes-Benz Stadium.

Gressel put the finishing touches on a nice buildup that saw Darlington Nagbe find Gressel, who played on to Pity Martinez with the Argentine playmaker returning the favor. Gressel chipped over Andre Blake, who was late off his line, and put his shot in off the crossbar just 10 minutes after kickoff.

The Union's best chance at an equalizer came seven minutes later when Sergio Santos was played behind and the Brazilian slipped a diagonal pass to a sliding Brenden Aaronson, who was denied by Brad Guzan at the edge of the six-yard box.

Not long after being denied by a late Ray Gaddis intervention, Josef Martinez tacked on the insurance goal in the 80th minute, running onto a Gressel long ball and ripping a left-footed blast under the crossbar for his fifth postseason goal.

Goals

10' — ATL — Julian Gressel
80' — ATL — Josef Martinez

Three Things

THE BIG PICTURE: Another magical moment at Mercedes-Benz Stadium for the Five Stripes, who also kept another playoff clean sheet to move one step closer to reaching MLS Cup for a second straight year. The Union made big strides this year, but surely they wonder what if Kacper Przybylko was healthy?

MOMENT OF THE MATCH: How different would the game had been if Aaronson was able to put this shot past Guzan and equalize? We'll never know because the veteran came up with the biggest of his three saves.

MAN OF THE MATCH: Gressel scored a terrific opening goal and set up Josef with a perfect long ball. He probably should have had another assist, but the Venezuelan missed the target late.

Seattle Sounders 2, Real Salt Lake 0

The Seattle Sounders were counting on their experience to help them make a deep run in the Audi 2019 MLS Cup Playoffs, and that's exactly what happened in their Western Conference Semifinal clash on Wednesday, as they beat Real Salt Lake 2-0 at CenturyLink Field.

Seattle, who have been in the playoffs every year the club has been in MLS, reach the Western Conference Final for the third time in the last four years.

The teams were looking for goal early, and Nicolas Lodeiro's curling attempt for Seattle pinged off the post in the fifth minute. But neither side found a breakthrough in the opening half.

Shortly into the second half, Sounders defender Roman Torres was forced out of the match with a left hamstring strain, with Xavier Arreaga taking his place. Seattle pushed for the opening goal, but RSL goalkeeper Nick Rimando, in the final game of his legendary career, held firm until the 64th minute, when Gustav Svensson scored a nifty near-post header off Lodeiro's corner kick.

Lodeiro scored the insurance goal just inside the box in the closing minutes, taking a feed from Raul Ruidiaz and hitting a one-timer that made no mistake to ensure Seattle's passage to the next round. Things got worse for RSL moments later, when midfielder Everton Luiz was shown a straight red card after a leaping two-footed challenge on Svensson.

Goals

64' – SEA – Gustav Svensson

81' – SEA – Nicolas Lodeiro

$4,000 was contributed to the Audi Goals Drive Progress fund.

Three Things

THE BIG PICTURE: Seattle came into the game favorites and ultimately showed their superiority over 90 minutes. They seem to be getting stronger as they advance, too, so they should be a tough test for the L.A. team that meets them in the next round. RSL entered the game with no pressure, and should be pleased with a good campaign, but they didn't have the quality in a couple key positions to better their counterparts on the night.

MOMENT OF THE MATCH: The winning goal was obviously the turning point, but also outstanding delivery and a great near-post finish.

MAN OF THE MATCH: A sentimental shout for Rimando, who made seven saves and put together a vintage performance in his final game. But Lodeiro was the architect to send the goalkeeper out, as the Uruguayan had a goal, an assist and set the tone on both sides of the ball throughout the game.

Los Angeles Football Club 5, LA Galaxy 3

The first El Trafico showdown played in the Audi MLS Cup Playoffs lived up to the hype and then some, with Los Angeles Football Club beating the LA Galaxy for the first time.

Carlos Vela and Adama Diomande scored a brace apiece to lead LAFC to a thrilling 5-3 win the Western Conference Semifinals Thursday night at Banc of California Stadium.

Moments after hitting the woodwork on a free-kick, Vela opened the scoring in the 16th minute following a turnover by Diego Polenta. The Golden Boot presented by Audi winner took a pass from Brian Rodriguez, sliced Giancarlo Gonzalez with a cut to his right foot and slid a low shot inside the far post.

It was the Mexican international's eighth all-time goal against the Galaxy, scoring in each of the six chapters of the rivalry.

Vela netted his second goal in the 40th minute, but it wasn't without a tinge of controversy. There were remonstrations from the Galaxy bench that Rodriguez was in an offside position when receiving a return pass from Latif Blessing before laying off to Vela for the tap-in.

Referee Kevin Stott was satisfied with the Video Review check and didn't deem it necessary to go to the monitor, allowing the goal to stand.

Just a minute later, Cristian Pavon had the response with a first-time finish inside the far post after Zlatan Ibrahimovic won the ball with a shoulder challenge on Tristan Blackmon.

Ibrahimovic then leveled in the 55th minute, but it was more about a gaffe by Tyler Miller, who let the towering Swede's shot go off his hand and through his legs.

Just when it looked like history would repeat itself and the Galaxy would prove LAFC's undoing once more, Diego Rossi and Diomande scored a pair of goals in a two-minute span to restore their two-goal lead.

Rolf Feltscher latched onto Romain Alessandrini's free-kick to pull the Galaxy within a goal in the 77th minute. Three minutes later, Diomande struck for his second goal to cap the scoring.

Goals

16' — LAFC — Carlos Vela	40' — LAFC — Carlos Vela	41' — LA — Cristian Pavon
55' — LA — Zlatan Ibrahimovic	66' — LAFC — Diego Rossi	68' — LAFC — Adama Diomande
77' — LA — Rolf Feltscher	80' — LAFC — Adama Diomande

Three Things

THE BIG PICTURE: LAFC exorcised their demons in a major way in a match that was tied for the highest-scoring Audi MLS Cup Playoffs match ever. In the Vela-Ibra debate, the Mexican had the last laugh. It was a familiar story for Galaxy at the end of the season, after conceding four or more goals in three of their final four games.

MOMENT OF THE MATCH: The Galaxy rallied from yet another two-goal deficit thanks to Ibrahimovic's influence again. Then Vela went to ground, fended off Daniel Steres and somehow got a pass off to Rossi to wrestle the momentum back.

MAN OF THE MATCH: All hail Carlos Vela.

Canada no match for Brazil, losing 4-1 in 2019 U17 World Cup opener

Canada's U-17 national team had a rough draw to kick off the 2019 U-17 World Cup, coming against powerhouse Brazil, who were also hosting the tournament.

In the end, the Canadians were no match for their hosts, as Brazil won 4-1 in the tournament opener in Brasilia on Saturday.

The game was one-way traffic controlled by Brazil most of the way, but the underdogs had one of their best plays right from the start. Canada had a save by goalkeeper Marc Kouadio and a last-gasp clearance by Canadian defender Kobe Franklin, a Toronto FC academy prospect, in the sixth minute to keep it scoreless.

Brazil found the breakthrough in the 17th minute, Joao Peglow converting on a cutback after a tricky run through several Canadian defenders by Gabriel Veron.

Canada's day got worse in first-half stoppage time, as Franklin turned the ball into his own net as Peglow was on the verge of a tap-in, giving Brazil a 2-0 edge.

Brazil scored again less than a minute into the second half, as Peglow smashed in a strike off Franklin's unfortunate failed clearance in Canada's box. Veron then added a goal to make it 4-0 in the 56th minute.

Canada nearly got on the board in the 70th minute, TFC product Deandre Kerr's strike after a dummy in the buildup forcing a save from Brazil goalkeeper Matheus Donelli. But they got a consolation goal in the 86th minute, TFC prospect Jacen Russell-Rowe's shot deflected on its way into the net and giving Canada a bit of a mental boost coming out of a big loss.

Looking to progress from the group stage for the first time at the U-17 World Cup, Les Rouges can take some solace from the hardest game in Group A play being out of the way, with two more opportunities to get a positive result and cut into the negative goal difference.

Their next match comes on Tuesday, when they face Angola, in their first-ever U-17 World Cup, on Tuesday (4 pm ET | TSN, TSN GO in Canada; FOX Soccer Plus, FOX Sports GO in US). Canada will conclude group play against New Zealand on Friday.

Canada lineup vs. Brazil: GK - Marc Kouadio; Kobe Franklin, Rohan Goulbourne, Damiano Pecile, Gianfranco Facchineri, Nathan Demian, Ralph Priso, Matthew Catavolo (Jacen Russell-Rowe, 6'9"), Jayden Nelson (Sean Rea, 7'1"), Deandre Kerr, Mamadou Kane (Kamron Habibullah, 5'3")
